Rabeprazole:-

Short-term treatment in healing and symptomatic relief of duodenal ulcers and erosive or gastroesophageal reflux disease (GERD); maintaining healing and reducing relapse rates of heartburn symptoms in patients with GERD; treatment of daytime and nighttime heartburn and other symptoms associated with GERD; long-term treatment of pathological hypersecretory conditions, including Zollinger-Ellison syndrome and in combination with amoxicillin and clarithromycin to eradicate Helicobacter pylori.

Domperidone is a medication developed by Janssen Pharmaceutica that acts as a peripherally selective antagonist of the dopamine D2 and D3 receptors. It is administered orally, rectally, or intravenously. Domperidone is given in order to relieve nausea and vomiting; to increase the transit of food through the stomach (as a prokinetic agent through increase in gastrointestinal peristalsis) and to increase lactation (breast milk production) by release of prolactin. It is also used in the scientific study of the way dopamine acts in the body. Domperidone is available in the form of tablets, suspension and suppositories.
